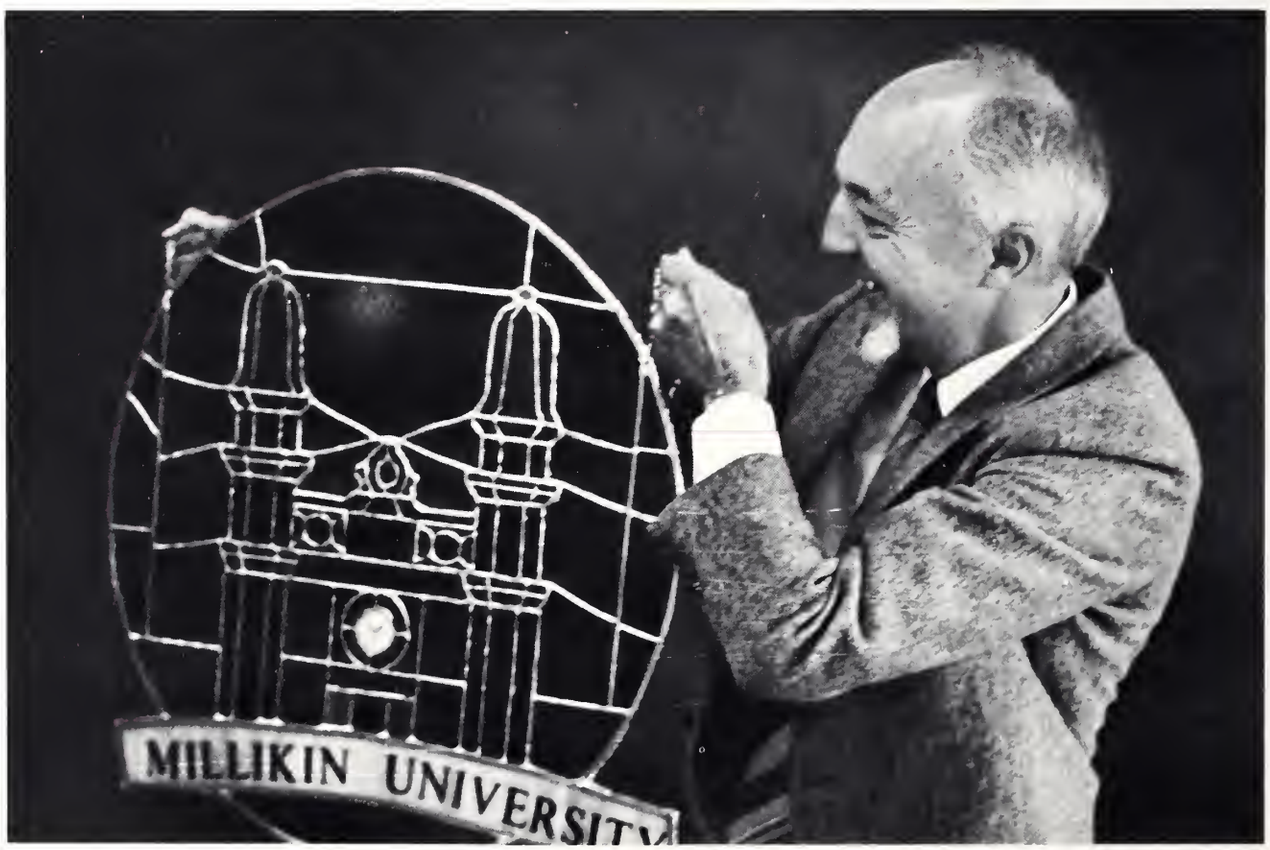
Time was . . . when Everyone laughed and Everyone thought that each day brought something new . . . something exciting
Time was . . . when Everyone grew

Time is . . . when Everyone leaves and Everyone goes out to greet each day filled with excitement . . . and hope
Time is . . . when Everyone grows out to other things and when Everyone returns to share dreams



To the [illegible] White we will loyal
Hail our Alma Mater
And her teams we will cheer whether win or lose,
Hail our Alma Mater
Her cherished traditions we'll uphold
Our loyalty will ne'er grow cold
Loyal sons and daughters we always will be,
Hail our Alma Mater.

We've been dubbed the "me generation" by writers in many popular magazines. We're "out for number one" and tend to stay out of political affairs and social questions. Some have proved that we are involved—we're simply not as publically outspoken as our predecessors.

Whatever our generation is, we saw much to comment on or not comment on in 1980-81. During this time period, we saw political changes, unrest in the Middle East and breakthroughs in technology. The hostage crisis in Iran laid a heavy burden on President Jimmy Carter and his administration. Many campaigns against Iran and the Ayahtollah were launched and Iranian students at universities across the United States stated their views on the situation.

In January of 1981 the fifty-two hostages returned to yellow ribbons, parades and recognition from officials . . . in short a hero's welcome. Now President Ronald Reagan was in the White House determined to balance the dget. H changes, but one speci incident gave the coun new cause for alarm. The assassination attempt on Presiden Reagan by John Hinckle Jr., as well as the assassination of John Lennon gave us cause to look closely at gun control laws.

Technology was improved when the first reusable manned pace craft went up on April 12, 1981. On the opposite e watched a natural phe menon occur in the shape of the erruptions of Mount St. Helen in the later months of 19 0. Scientists and photo others were fascinated, others were in awe and still others were horrified at the damage the spewing lava cau d.

This time period held a great many changes, some may change our lifestyles forever, but only time will tell.

CAMPUS CHEST

Several new Campus Chest activities planned by Millikin students helped net more than $2,200 for the Illinois Heart Foundation. Revolving around a "Star Wars" theme, students planned fund-raising activities to benefit the Heart Foundation. A campus-community variety show kicked off Campus Chest activities and was followed by "Faculty Feud." Campus Chest activities concluded with the annual Dance-a-thon in the R.T.U.C. In addition to the March fund-raising activities, more than 60 students and faculty completed CPR training provided by volunteers from the Heart Foundation.

Time was . . . when East was a hall,
LA was a building,
Tuesday nights meant fun,
Wednesdays meant labs,
Twinks were music majors, an ID was something to be borrowed and all-nighters were familiar.

Time is . . . a faster pace, a new place where East is a direction,
LA stands for Language Arts,
Tuesday nights are spent sleeping,
Wednesday is the middle of the week, an ID is to be kept in a wallet and all-nighters are unheard of.
